

Muziek als Vak Masterclass Weekend

November 16-17 2019

In this edition of the Muziek als Vak Masterclass Weekend we are very happy to (re-) introduce two fantastic Hungarian guest teachers: László Nemes and Árpád Tóth. Together with László and Árpád and our own team of teachers we've created a great programme for the weekend of November 16 and 17.

László Nemes will focus on the development of polyphonic skills and part-singing based on the Kodály-Ádám books. For upper primary school and high school music teaching. This interesting material is available on the KodályHub (www.kodalyhub.com)

In his workshops, Árpád Tóth will focus on music performance and musicianship development for secondary (high) school students, as well as the topic of working with (community) choirs.

Both László and Árpád will also teach a regular musicianship class.

To start the weekend in top shape, Daniel Salbert will guide Kodály-beginners, those without solfa-experience, and anyone who wants to warm up their solfege skills, in an introductory solfege session. This class starts at 9.00 on the Saturday and is an optional part of the programme!

Teachers: Daniël Salbert, Royal Conservatoire The Hague; László Nemes and Árpád Tóth, Liszt Academy Budapest/Kodály Institute Kecskemét

Time: Saturday 16, Sunday 17 Nov 10.00-17.00 (optional solfege introductory course start at 9.00 on Saturday)
